

BIOGRAPHY

Mr. Abdullah Hamoud Alsalhi

Mr. Abdullah Hamoud Alsalhi is a seasoned executive and strategic leader with extensive experience in agriculture, organizational development, operational excellence, and digital transformation. He currently serves as a Senior Executive at the Capacity Development Agency, Ministry of Municipal and Rural Affairs, where he oversees strategy development, program and project implementation, investment planning, and impact assessment.

Prior to his current role, Mr. Alsalhi held several senior leadership positions in the private sector, including at Al-Watania Poultry Company, where he led strategic and operational planning, performance management, productivity optimization, process reengineering, and digital transformation initiatives. He also contributed to organizational development, cost reduction projects, and job evaluation at Al-Jomaih Bottling Plants (Pepsi), Saudi Research and Marketing Company (SRMG), and Tabuk Agricultural Development Company.

Mr. Alsalhi holds a Bachelor's degree in Business Administration from King Abdulaziz University (2008), a Strategic Planning Executive Master's from the British Board (2018) and completed the Future Leadership Development Program at Harvard Business School, USA (2023).

He is a board member and independent member in multiple companies, including Tabouk Agricultural Development Company and Fakher Agricultural Company (under establishment), actively participating in executive committees and nominations and remuneration committees to drive governance and strategic decision-making in the agricultural sector.